E. German Reds Chart Reprisal Counter Moves

Guard Against West Trade Curbs

BERLIN (AP)—The rulers of East Germany disclosed Sunday new moves in their drive to safeguard themselves against trade reprisals from the West for any move the Communists may make against West Berlin.

The East Berlin press published a demand from Paul Verner, head of the Communist party organization in the city, for measures against people who work in West Berlin and live in East Berlin. In Communist eyes, these people are a drain on the East German economy.

"Rightly, the majority of our people demand that this abnormal situation be changed," said Verner, "and require that the border-crossers."

The Communists already have taken measures against them. They were warned they must get official East German permission before they can take a West Berlin job, they have been told they cannot have new apartments in East Berlin, and they have been forbidden to buy such expensive items as cars, TV sets and electric iceboxes.

Also published Sunday was a sharply critical report by a Politburo member on the production and distribution of almost everything in East Germany from machine tools to diapers.

Eric Honecker, who is also a top leader of the Communist youth movement, emphasized the need for changes in the East German economy to meet the possibility of trade measures in the West. He called for:

1. Getting as much steel and other raw materials as possible from East Germany's own resources and from the Soviet bloc.
2. Conversion of industry so that raw materials are more economically used.
3. More standardization and limitation of a variety of products.

4. Emphasis on production for export to the Soviet Union.

Although Honecker did not clearly say so, these changes indicate the consumer in East Germany is going to get fewer goods and less variety than he wants.

Eight Perish, Two Survive Auto Smashup

SIKESTON, Mo. (AP)—Two survivors of an auto smashup that killed eight persons at a rural intersection near Sikeston Saturday night wandered out of a nearby field early Sunday dazed but apparently unhurt.

State troopers said Sam Jones, 31, driver of the car in which seven persons lost their lives, and Henry Lee Toles, 7, son of one of the victims, could remember little about the accident.

Jones, who lives about one mile from the scene, told authorities he and the child spent the night roaming about numb and dazed. "I don't remember anything but being with Mr. Jones in a field," the youngster said.

Jones and the boy were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for observation.

Previously it was reported that 11 persons, all Negroes, were in Jones' car when an auto driven by Gaylon Eakin, 17, of Bell City, Mo., allegedly racing with his cousin, collided with the vehicle as it turned onto a black-top road.

Eakin was killed as his speeding car skidded 200 feet and crashed into the Jones' auto, throwing all 13 occupants to the pavement. The car driven by his cousin, James Eakin, 20, of Bell City, skidded about 200 feet into a ditch to avoid the wreckage. James Eakin, who was not hurt, was booked on suspicion of careless driving and speeding.

Dead in the Jones car were Pearlina Toles, 41, of Sikeston, mother of the Toles boy, and six members of a Parma, Mo., family—Marshall Jameson, 37; his wife, Henrietta, 40; their sons, Marshal Jr., 2, and Mitchell, 11 months; and two stepdaughters, Judy Early, 8, and Diane Early, 12.

'Lollo' Walks Out On 'K'

MOSCOW (AP)—Gina Lollo-Brigida walked out on Soviet Premier Khrushchev and other top dignitaries at the Moscow Film Festival opening Sunday night and explained later she just couldn't wait any longer for a bath and a change of clothes.

"I wasn't angry, just upset," she said. "I was very strained after a two-day trip to Moscow."

The lovely Italian actress stalked out of Moscow's Lenin Stadium at the height of a flurry of speeches extolling communism and the Soviet Union. Sitting in a special box, Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet government leaders just stared.

Interviewed in her hotel room, Gina said later she thought American film producer William Perlberg had got the wrong impression when he told newsmen she was "sore as hell" about being taken to the stadium from the airport without a chance to bathe, make up, or change her clothes.

"Perhaps he was sorry for me," she said. "He thought it unbelievable that I would have to go direct from the airport to the festival."

"I looked like a gypsy," Gina left Khrushchev and other dignitaries looking flabbergasted. She walked out just before the feature film of the evening—a documentary about Soviet space man Yuri A. Gagarin.

"I had the pleasure to see Khrushchev," she said. "This is something exciting, even from far away. I just came from the airport and I see Khrushchev. I can see the film about time."

Of her abrupt departure from the festival, the Italian film star said, "I was sure they would understand when I left."

Murrow Says USIA Is Able But Hard-Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Edward R. Murrow described the U.S. Information Agency Sunday as nonpartisan, able and hard-up. And he got the promise of at least one Republican vote for more money.

Murrow, the USIA director, told Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., that the views of Republicans get a full airing in USIA broadcasts to other countries.

"We regard the Voice of America . . . as the voice of all America, not the voice of the Democratic party," Murrow said. "We also proceed on the assumption that controversy is good. It seems to us useful to reflect substantial and responsible controversy and . . . we do certainly report minority speeches and attitudes."

Questioned on a TV program taped for Pennsylvania stations by Scott and Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., Murrow rallied strongly to the defense of his staff—sometimes described by congressional critics as something less than sharp.

Murrow held his people would be capable of competing with private broadcasters and said of his staff: "This is not a bunch of dunderheads."

"We have got people of vast experience. They are all human. They are not always ideal. But, having spent 25 years in the field of communications—in the private sector—I would undertake now to staff a network out of this agency and make it compete with anything that exists in this country."

Getting to money matters, Murrow said USIA now ranks fourth in broadcast hours behind the Soviet Union, Communist China and the United Arab Republic. He said the $118 million budget which USIA is asking "is slightly less than the cost of one combat-loaded Polaris submarine."

The USIA director said his agency needs restoration of funds cut from its budget by the House to add more broadcasts, television films and other communications to Latin America.

Ousted Korea Junta Leader Held In Plot

Chang, 44 Officers Accused Of Planning Pak Assassination

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Charges of traitorous activity that might be punished by death are facing Lt. Gen. Chang Do-yung, 38, fallen figurehead of the spring coup that put South Korea under military rule.

Spokesmen for the ruling junta Sunday accused the former premier of seeking to use American troops against Korean revolutionary forces and plotting with 44 other officers to kill the coup planner, Maj. Gen. Pak Chung-hi.

Charges leveled at a news conference called by the junta included a fantastic plot to gain actual control of the government. Chang had headed since Premier John M. Chang, no relation, was ousted through the May 16 takeover by the military.

Pak Moved Up Week Ago

In an hour-long recitation, an intelligence officer said Chang and the 44 others were caught scheming to assassinate Pak and "other persons in the central force of the revolution."

Pak moved from deputy chairman to chairman of the Supreme Council for National Reconstruction—the junta—last Monday after Chang was forced to resign as premier and junta chief.

The Pak regime said the 45, including five junta members, were picked up that day after failing in one attempt to stage a counter coup and while planning another.

Under a law formulated two weeks ago, penalties for counter-revolutionary activities range from 10 years imprisonment to death. The stiffest penalty was expected to be given to Chang and 12 listed as masterminds of the reported plot to kill Pak. It was presumed all 45 would be court-martialed.

Rumors Borne Out

Rumors that Chang would be charged with an assassination plot against Pak had circulated throughout Seoul for several days.

Lt. Col. Suh Chung-soon, deputy chief of the Central Intelligence Bureau, spun a tale of intrigue, counterplot and skulduggery on the part of Chang, who several days after the coup had five titles—defense minister, army chief of staff and martial law commander, as well as premier and junta chief.

Now, said Suh, he is under house arrest. The others were reported jailed.

Grounded Ship Blows Up; 25 Die

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP)—The Portuguese ship Save ran aground off this Portuguese East African colony Saturday night and then was rocked by an explosion. Reports reaching here Sunday night said at least 25 of the 550 persons aboard were killed.

It was feared the death toll might go higher since a number of passengers still are unaccounted for.

The explosion, believed to have occurred in munitions and fuel the ship carried, set the ship ablaze and fire raged out of control Sunday. The ship was reported breaking up under heavy seas.

The victims included four members of the ship's crew and 21 of more passengers, some of them Portuguese troops.

Friends Find It Hard To Believe Marine Hero Kidnap Killer

MOAB, Utah (AP)—The assumption is that Abel Aragon shot and killed a Connecticut woman and kidnapped her daughter, then killed himself when caught. But friends find that hard to believe.

Aragon was a quiet man, slow to learn, to act, to anger. He was a family man, with five children. There was no previous record of trouble.

A close friend who served with him in the Marines—and who is now a police officer—Carbon County's Chief Deputy Sheriff Charles Semken—says Aragon was "a good hard worker" and "never a drinker or anything."

Semken, from Price where Aragon lived most of his life, said: "He was not the kind of person you would associate with violence of that type. I don't think he was capable of it."

"I think something must have snapped."

Aragon was slow to anger, but was heroically violent as a Marine mortar man on Guam during World War II.

On July 22, 1944, he and eight others were pinned under enemy fire, but they took up rifles and assaulted and conquered a barren ridge near Choncho Ridge after four hours of fighting.

Six of the nine Marines were killed or wounded. Only Aragon and two others reached the crest and he fought for two hours while wounded. He was 18 years old at the time.

Aragon fought gallantly under extreme duress and was awarded the Navy Cross, the nation's second highest decoration for valor.

He was a hero in peacetime, too.

In July 1957 a slight underground quake, known as a "bounce" released fumes which overcame four of his fellow miners nearly 1,800 feet inside a mine. Three were fatally overcome by the fumes, but he carried the fourth to safety.

But he and about 70 other miners were laid off last February because of a business slack. Friends said he had been despondent because he was out of work.

He went to Moab to look for a job last Monday. He thought he had one, but it didn't materialize.

Last Tuesday night a man struck up a brief acquaintance at a tourist stop with Jeanette Sullivan, 41, of Rockville, Conn., her daughter Denise, 15, and Charles Boothroyd, 35, a machine shop supervisor at Hartford, Conn.

The man drove on and the Connecticut trio, on a vacation trip to the West for Denise, followed. On a lonely desert road 20 miles or so northwest of Moab, Boothroyd saw the man, apparently having car trouble, so he stopped to help.

The man asked for a flashlight. It was night. Then he pulled a gun. Boothroyd said it was a .22-caliber rifle. This is what he told the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

That friendly motorist, who seemingly was stranded, ordered him to throw his wallet with $250 on the ground. He did. Then the man called the women out of the car. Denise stayed, but Mrs. Sullivan came out. She picked up the wallet and said something to the effect that this was all Boothroyd had to his name, drew out two or three $10 or $20 bills and threw them on the ground for the man.

She turned around and walked away. The motorist told her to come back and throw down the wallet, but she wouldn't.

He shot her in the back of the head.

Then he shot Boothroyd in the face, twice.

Denise tried to drive away, but he caught her and took her with him.

Imprisoned 43 Days In Tiny Box, Marine Charges In Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An American Marine serving a five-year sentence for black-marketing charges he was imprisoned in a 5x7-foot box between 6 and 7 feet in height on Okinawa for 43 days last year while awaiting court-martial.

The Marine, Pvt. Stobo C. West, 31, of Union County, S.C., is in the stockade at nearby Treasure Island awaiting the results of an appeal.

Lt. Col. James E. Stauffer, who is defending West, called the alleged imprisonment "unbelievable, sadistic and barbaric" in a 49-page brief.

Robert Hannon, an ex-Marine officer and now a Castro Valley, Calif., attorney, studied the case. He said it is "without question one of the worst legal farces in Marine Corps history."

In his brief, Stauffer contended there were 10 errors in the general court-martial which convicted West last July. Among them was the charge that West was subjected to "cold and calculated . . . animal-like treatment, methodically imposed" as a pretrial punishment.

Stauffer charged West spent at least 43 days in the box, which was described as windowless and without light or furniture. He said the Marine was permitted outside for brief trips to the bathroom and for occasional cold water showers.

"Chow was cold and you had to eat off a cement floor," West said in the brief. "Meals consisted of cornflakes and water, or whatever it might be."

Marine authorities in Okinawa said West once escaped for part of a day and they feared he might try to escape again.

Stauffer, scoffing at the explanation, said West was unexpectedly freed for a 10-day period to act as an undercover agent for the provost marshal. West helped break up a huge civilian black-market ring on Okinawa and testimony he gave at the civilians' trial was later used against him, Stauffer asserted.

West said he was taken to court in another box aboard a truck during his own trial. He said he wasn't allowed to shave and was forced to appear in dirty, unkempt uniforms.

West's case is being reviewed by the Navy judge advocate general's court in nearby San Bruno.

Red China Acts To Spike Soviet Rift Reports

TOKYO (AP)—Foreign Minister Chen Yi of Communist China declared Sunday Red China will "abide by the 1957 Moscow declaration and the 1960 Moscow statement," the New China News Agency reported.

Chen Yi's statement seemed to be an answer to worldwide reports that there is a serious rift between Moscow and Peking on matters of party doctrine.

By the 1957 Moscow declaration Chen Yi presumably referred to a peace manifesto signed by the Communist parties of 64 nations endorsing Soviet policies. The 1960 statement called for an end to an ideological quarrel in which the Chinese insisted on the need for forcible export of communism will win the world without war.

Addressing a rally in Peking marking the 40th anniversary of the Mongolian People's Republic, Chen Yi said: "The Chinese people will unswervingly adhere to Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, abide by the 1957 Moscow declaration and the 1960 Moscow statement, forever closely unite with the fraternal Mongolian people and the peoples of the Soviet Union and of other Socialist countries and struggle for new victories in our common cause."

Jet Bombers, Giant 'Copter Impressive

West Experts Say U.S. Cannot Match Several Innovations

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union gave a spectacular display of its air might at Tushino Airfield Sunday. It showed a bewildering variety of new craft ranging from two supersonic jet bombers to a giant helicopter that can carry a house.

Premier Khrushchev and cosmonaut Maj. Yuri Gagarin watched side by side. Diplomats in the stands speculated that the power display, the first Soviet air show since 1958, was intended to influence the rapidly developing Berlin crisis.

"A very impressive show," said the U.S. air attaché, Col. Melvin Neilsen. "It's evident the Russians have continued with the development of all classes of aircraft."

Western experts said the United States has nothing to match several things, including a jet fighter that can switch on a liquid rocket engine booster in flight to give it a tremendous rate of climb.

These observers said the air parade showed the Soviet Union is not putting all its faith in long-range missiles.

Fighters Tote Rockets

Instead of conventional cannon, the fighters carried air-to-air rockets. The latest bombers were armed with air-to-surface missiles instead of bombs.

A delta-wing bomber, which the announcer said had a speed several times that of sound, was the most spectacular plane shown publicly for the first time.

It had four jets, two on the wing tips and two inboard below the wings. It looked bigger than the U.S. B52, which has eight engines, and it dwarfed a fighter plane shown with it.

Running the delta a close second in interest for watching Western air attaches was a flypast of 10 heavy supersonic bombers.

This new model also was being shown publicly for the first time. It's two engines were mounted on the rear atop the long and slender fuselage. It had high swept wings.

It was comparable in size to the American B58, whose publicly admitted speed is 1,500 miles per hour.

Into Clouds In Seconds

The pilot of the jet fighter with the liquid rocket engine lit up this auxiliary just as he passed the government reviewing stand. The plane, delta-winged, shot up into the clouds in a matter of seconds.

There were three other displays of new delta-wing fighters, all of which carried air-to-air rockets.

The Russians showed four editions of a new jet amphibious plane.

Another novelty was something billed in advance as a vertical take-off plane in the sense the phrase is used in the West, since it did not depend on a jet thrust to get into the air. It was halfway between an airplane and a helicopter—the program called it a "screw wing plane."

Two engines were mounted at the end of each wing. In addition it had two rotors atop each wing. It was extremely maneuverable and could be used to carry either freight or troops.

Algerian War Costly

PARIS (AP)—The Algerian war had claimed the lives of 10,200 French military personnel up to Dec. 31, 1960, the government said Sunday.

Judo Might Help Kennedy

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP)—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion has recommended to President Kennedy that he have his back trouble treated by Dr. Moshe Feldenkrais, a Tel Aviv judo black belt holder, an informed source said Sunday. The prime minister has been working out with Dr. Feldenkrais four times a week for the last four years to keep fit.

Israel's 74-year-old leader attributes his astonishing physical freshness largely to Feldenkrais' methods—originally derived from judo but also containing elements of manual physiotherapy, accompanied by advice on how to walk, sit and breathe correctly.

Ben-Gurion's exercising first came to public attention when newspapers here and abroad published pictures some time ago showing him standing on his head.

A well-informed private source said Ben-Gurion made his suggestion to President Kennedy through U.S. Ambassador Walworth Barbour, who cabled the proposal to Washington.

In Hyannis Port, Mass., presidential press secretary Pierre

Salinger said he had not heard of the report and would have no comment.

Feldenkrais, whose doctorate is in physics, is not a physician, but has specialized in judo and body-training generally. He is now in private practice in Tel Aviv.

NAACP Reports Gains In Discrimination Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Sunday dogged efforts by its members brought many gains in the fight against discrimination during 1960. It added, "The civil rights victory is just around the corner."

But the organization also noted there were some developments from the opposite standpoint as it issued a 72-page report and financial accounting for 1960.

For one thing, it said, many traditional sources of Negro employment were being lost because of automation and other technical changes in the nation's economy. Railroad work and unskilled jobs in mass production industries were cited.

The NAACP said, too, that discrimination and segregation continue within trade unions. It asserted that for five years the AFL-CIO has "failed to eliminate the broad pattern of racial discrimination and segregation in many important affiliated unions."

However, the report said Negroes on the whole had won improvement in housing, education, church activities and youth programs.

"Negroes invariably received better treatment and consideration from city officials in areas where they had political strength," it was said.

In a brief foreword to the report, Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins said activity of members during the year "is a record of persistent, continuing attack and of partial and complete victories in a vast variety of fields where proscription has affected opportunity."

70 Participate In New Wade-In Demonstration

CHICAGO (AP)—Negro and white demonstrators Sunday duplicated Saturday's "wade-in" demonstration at the South Side's racially tense Rainbow public beach, traditionally an all-white facility.

About 70 waders—a third of them Negroes—arrived in mid-morning while 250 city policemen stood guard on or near the beach. A Chicago police boat cruised offshore in another show of strength.

Under the direction of Norman Hill, 24, a Negro, the members of the group dispersed through the beach and sat down on the sand in small groups. When they arrived, only about 300 persons were on the beach; shortly after noon the crowd had swelled to 3,000.

Capt. James P. Hackett strode the beach with a megaphone, barking orders to the crowds. He warned bathers and onlookers to keep moving and not to form large groups.

There was little incident otherwise, but by midafternoon three persons had been arrested. A white woman was taken into custody after she kicked sand at another. Several hours later a white youth and a Negro were arrested after a brief shoving match.

Saturday nine persons, three of them Negroes, were hustled off to jail when they did not obey police commands.

'Axis Sally' To Be Paroled Today

ALDERSON, W. Va., (UPI)—Mildred E. Gillars, better-known to World War II American GIs as "Axis Sally," will be paroled Monday from the Federal Reformatory for Women after serving about 12 years of a 10-to-30 year sentence for treason.

Miss Gillars, now a gray-haired 60, has been confined since Aug. 10, 1950, after her appeal from the sentence handed down in March 1949, was rejected.

The sultry-voiced propagandist for radio Berlin was arrested in 1946 by Army intelligence agents who found her living in the ruins of Berlin under an assumed name.

Warden Vernelle Bowman said Miss Gillars will be picked up at the prison by a relative, believed to be a half-sister, who will drive her to an undisclosed destination pending the start of her work at a convent.

Butler Urges Denial Of Pay To Turncoats

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Marshall Butler, R-Md., Sunday urged Congress to deny back pay to members of the armed forces who defect to the enemy after being captured, as happened in the Korean War.

Butler would deny pay to three soldiers who defected to Red China after their capture in Korea, but who later returned to the United States. They then claimed back pay and allowances totaling more than $9,000 from the time of their capture in 1950 and 1951 until their discharge from the Army in 1954.

They are Ortho G. Bell of Hillsboro, Miss.; William A. Cowart of Monticello, Ark.; and Lewis W. Riggs of Jacksonville, Tex. The Supreme Court has sustained their claims for back pay and allowances, holding that the law provides no basis for withholding the money, no matter what their conduct might have been.

Butler said in a statement the court decision was "technically correct but nevertheless abhorrent." He said Congress should move now to enact companion bills he has introduced to deal with such situations.

One of his bills would forbid the expenditure of public funds to pay the three defectors. The other bill would forbid payment of any future such claims.

his wallet with about $200 in it. The bills which Mrs. Sullivan threw on the ground had either been picked up by the motorist or blown away by the wind.

So the motorist got little, if any, money. If that's what he was after, he failed, and tragically ended the life of Mrs. Sullivan in the process.

He probably thought he had killed Boothroyd, too, but he recovered.

What could he do with Denise? Police feel he could do nothing else but kill her under the circumstances.

Late Friday night, Aragon was stopped by FBI agents on a state highway not far from where all this took place. When they showed their badges he rolled up the window, took out a .22-caliber automatic pistol and shot himself in the head. He died two hours later without regaining consciousness.

Denise was not with him. Nor was there a rifle in his car.

Grand County Sheriff John Stocks said there was little doubt that Aragon was the one who killed Mrs. Sullivan and kidnapped Denise.

The sheriff said he expects to find Denise dead somewhere in the remote southeastern Utah area near here, and that perhaps the rifle will be found, too.

Bethesda Girl Crowned New Miss Maryland

SALISBURY (AP)—A part-time salesgirl who wants to be a nurse is the new Miss Maryland.

Patricia Ann Moon of Bethesda, Md., captured the crown here Saturday night in competition with 11 other Maryland beauties.

She won a $1,000 scholarship, a $50 hat and all-expenses-paid trip to Atlantic City, N. J., where she will compete in the annual Miss America Pageant.

Miss Maryland has brown eyes and hair, stands five feet, four inches tall, and her dimensions are 35-23½-35.

Runnerup in the contest was Miss Carolyn B. Wright of Harford County. Next in the judging came Miss Lillian Boyce Wray, Lovington, Va., as Miss Prince Georges County; Miss Georgia Lynn Crosby, Miss Silver Spring; and Miss Margaret Rose Scarff of Fallston, as Miss Miss Bel Air.

Miss Alice Ana Remsburg, a school teacher from Sharpsburg, Md., received the Miss Congeniality prize awarded by the contestants.

"I'm going to use the scholarship at the University of Maryland where I'm going to take the nursing course," said Miss Moon, who won't be 18 until Aug. 13.

She said she was excited about the prospect of going to Atlantic City in September to compete for the national title.

Maryland Gasoline Price Inquiry Urged

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes has been urged to appoint a study commission to investigate gasoline prices in Maryland.

A request for "this long overdue study" came Saturday from Baltimore City Councilman Peter G. Angelo, who termed existing prices "excessive and arbitrary."

Citing last week's one-cent-a-gallon increase in Esso Standard prices for Maryland dealers, Angelo said:

"If past experience holds true, this will result in a similar increase in the price to retailers by other suppliers."

"This, in turn, will result in an increase of the price to the consumer," he said.

He said the Esso price raise "one again demonstrates the urgent need for a thorough vigorous investigation of prices consumers of the state are being forced to pay for this basic commodity."

Angelo claimed comparative figures indicate that gasoline prices in Maryland, particularly in Baltimore, are higher than elsewhere on the East Coast.

Maryland Tax Take Below Expectations

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland sales and income taxes produced more money than they had in 1960, but still failed to come up to expectations for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Net receipts from the sales tax totaled $76,765,91, a drop of $1,269,409 from the amount estimated last December. State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said Saturday.

Income taxes were only $31,499 lower than the estimate, and yielded a net total of $110,900,501.

The total revenue from the two sources increased by more than $8 million, but still fell short of the 5 per cent rise predicted for them.

Goldstein blamed part of the drop on adverse weather conditions and a recession in business.

Police Head Dies

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—A Vernon Turner, police commissioner in Cambridge for 21 years, died early Sunday in Cambridge-Maryland Hospital after a long illness. He was 69.

Dying "Is Wanting To Live," Liz Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor's story of her journey to death's portal—told at a hospital fund-raising dinner Saturday night—was so dramatic and vivid that her wealthy listeners pledged almost $7 million.

That was $3 million more than the most optimistic sponsors had expected.

Miss Taylor herself contributed more than mere words. She and her husband, Eddie Fisher, gave $100,000 to the recently merged Cedars of Lebanon and Mt. Sinai hospitals.

Among those who heard Miss Taylor tell of her feelings last March, when she almost died of pneumonia in a London clinic, were Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the President, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Peter Lawford and Debbie Reynolds, Fisher's former wife.

This, said Miss Taylor, is what it's like to come within a shade of death: "Suddenly thousands of voices seemed to be crying within me, and it must have been death because I cannot describe a greater loneliness than what I felt."

"Dying, as I remember it, is many things—but most of all it is wanting to live."

Kennedys Attend Mass, Attract Crowd

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Secret Service agents and police had to cope with screaming spectators that swarmed around President and Mrs. Kennedy as the first family attended Mass.

More than 1,000 persons jammed around the St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic church in Hyannis, pushing against rope barriers for a glimpse of the Kennedys as they attended 11 a.m. Mass.

The President is spending a quiet weekend at his summer home here and he planned to fly back to Washington early Monday morning in time to be at the White House shortly after 10 o'clock.

Same Award Made In SRC Land Case

The award by a jury in Circuit Court in a land condemnation case brought by the State Roads Commission for a piece of property on U. S. Route 40 just beyond Long Hill was exactly what the SRC had offered.

The SRC deposited a check for $2,475 with Clerk of Court Joseph E. Boden as an offer for the property owned by Edith Beck Stallings Donahue and Bernard Grover Donahue. That was the award which the jury made after viewing the property and hearing testimony in the case.

D. C. Goodfellow, local realtor, testified for the state and set the value of the property at $2,300 while the owners set a $6,000 value. Associate Judge W. Earle Cobby presided in the case and also accompanied the jurors to the site to view the property.

Peter J. Carpentieri, of the SRC legal staff, and William Walsh represented the state while Thomas N. Berry was attorney for the Donahues.

Top off your tour with an attractive packable hat.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Don't Take A Chance — Take A Hat!

Plan to pack a hat when you travel this summer, whether you plan a trip to Europe or a casual cottage vacation. It may not be a "must" to wear a hat, but it certainly is a "must" to have a hat handy, just in case.

There are so many delightful new bonnets designed for traveling, you may decide to pack several. Thanks to the ingenious blend of form and fabric, there is a big collection of collapsible headgear to choose from. And there's not a single example of typical "tourist tailoring" among them.

The favorite forms you'll find are berets, pillboxes, caps and draped turbans . . . and cloches, of course. Snoods are back on the scene, too—airy envelopes of veiling tipped with a tiny hat, a flat bow or a spray of flowers or leaves.

The favored fabrics are grosgrain ribbon, summer velvet, taffeta, silk jersey, silk ottoman, crested silk braid and petit point. And there are novelty mixtures with raffia or horsehair.

It's better to take two hats—one for elegance, the other (perhaps the snood style) for hair protection—than one hat and a head scarf. Leave the babushka at home, especially if you're touring Europe or one of the large American cities.

Since you'll undoubtedly be carrying one of those big portmanteau-type purses, there should be room enough to have one of your hats with you wherever you go. On many tours, the need for a hat will crop up unexpectedly . . . according to the weather, according to points of interest—such as churches and shrines—according to the formality of strange hotels and restaurants, and according to local custom (always unpredictable in foreign countries).

One thing is certain, you can never make a mistake in wearing a hat throughout your trip. Not only to satisfy grooming and etiquette but also to save your clobber. If you agree, then just be sure to add comfortable fit to form and fabric when you measure the talents of traveling hats.

Another travel tip: Don't toss all calorie-caution to the winds on your vacation. No woman wants to find a strict diet among her vacation souvenirs. Send today for my easy-to-pack pamphlet, "Your Diet and Calorie Guide." It's yours absolutely free upon request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper. Allow two weeks for delivery.

HOLLYWOOD

By Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — It wasn't only a legal tangle with Anna Kashfi that brought Marlon Brando back from Tahiti for a single day.

While here Marlon conferred with his father and Walter Seltzer regarding his next Pennebaker production. This is a wacky comedy "Strike Me Lucky" that Jon Cleary (who wrote "The Sun-Downers") has scripted from a novel written by his wife, Joy Cleary. It is a story of two brothers who find gold in their back yard only to discover that wealth isn't necessarily the ticket to happiness.

Brando sent the script to Burt Lancaster about playing the older brother and to Albert Finney of "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" for the other one.

Partly because I received such an enthusiastic letter from J. Lee Thompson, who wrote me after my article on "Guns of Navarone" was published, and partly because I think he is such a good director, I am more than a little interested that this young Englishman is going to direct "Taras Bulba."

Harold Hecht, who scored a major coup by getting Thompson to direct this multimillion dollar spectacle, was very happy when the papers were signed. Scheduled to start in October, both in Hollywood and on location in the Argentine, Tony Curtis, so far, is the only actor signed for "Bulba."

J. Lee Thompson, who just completed "Cape Fear," says, "I will always be grateful to Greg Peck for bringing me to Hollywood. I have loved every minute of making 'Cape Fear.' He predicts that young Lori Hardin will become another Hayley Mills. He directed Hayley in her first film "Tiger Bay."

Literally up, up, UP in the air go some of our latest movies when, on Tuesday, a long time dream of Transworld Airlines comes true and feature length movies will be shown on the jet flights.

The first, shown to an invitational press group, will be "Come September" and the regular runs will follow with "By Love Possessed," "Romanoff and Juliet," "Tammy Tell Me True" and Gary Cooper's final picture, "The Naked Edge" which he made for U.A. last summer in England with Deborah Kerr.

I'm joking—but wouldn't it be funny if the airline customers started calling in, "I've seen your movie for today. Book me on tomorrow's flight."

Ted Stauffer's sense of humor shows in the amusing letter he writes from Acapulco about my usually referring to him as someone's "ex-husband" when I mention his name. "As much as I enjoy being in your column the title 'ex' makes me sad. You see, besides the four wives I loved and the many girl friends I loved also, I HAVE done some creative work."

He goes on to tell me of how proud he is over his many ventures in Acapulco including the world-famous Perla Nightclub, and his latest the Villa Vera Racquet Club. His orchestra also made 500 recordings in Europe and was the background music for the musical "Engarde Express"—a hit.

Rocky Cooper, greatly saddened by the death of Ernest Hemingway who was so close to Gary, said that she knows exactly where the great author is buried because he had shown the plot to her and Gary when they were in Idaho some months ago.

She said that "Papa," as Hemingway was called by those who knew and loved him best, believed that one day he would return to the Catholic Church.

Rocky and Maria have decided against going to Tahiti. She said it is so difficult to be sure of getting accommodations. Instead she will go to Southampton for a visit with her stepfather, Paul Shields.

Wait 'til the San Francisco sportswriters get hold of this: Candlestick Park, home of the Giants' baseball team, where the winds from the bay howl and blow, will be the locale for the climax scenes of "Operation Terror"—a title to which many Giant pitchers will attest!

The Columbia movie, starring Lee Remick, will utilize Candlestick Park for the thriller scenes showing the villain being shot down from a helicopter as it descends into the park (weather permitting, of course).

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Congratulations are in order for Jack Entratter who will be a grandfather in late February. His daughter Caryll, who is married to Michael Palin, telephoned the good news and Jack is hoping the baby will be born on his birthday, Feb. 28.

Porty Mason, who acts and looks like a 17-year-old beauty, had many eyes in her direction when she dined with James and Pamela Mason and her little brother at Chasen's. James is still wearing the beard he is raising for his most recent movie.

On the way out, met Diana Lynn who was celebrating her birthday with her husband and some friends. I dined with Mr. and Mrs. Mori Krushen who are here to arrange for the exploitation of "West Side Story."

The Peter Lawford baby is being christened tomorrow at St. Monica's Church. Mrs. Gary Cooper is the Godmother and the Godfather is Pat Lawford's brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, who flew in both for the baptism and for the Elizabeth Taylor dinner tomorrow night.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Help! Urgent! Swimming season is in full swing and we need some ground rules for our teenagers.

Our 15-year-old son left home yesterday in his swimming trunks, a knit shirt and a pair of sandals. He went over to pick up his girl friend. She had on a bikini and a skimpy beach coat. They left her house at noon, drove around a while, decided not to go swimming after all, and went back to her house to play records (still in swimming clothes). I got this information from the girl's mother who is very sensible and as concerned as I am.

Now, Ann, what is the proper attire for teenagers who are going swimming? We belong to a club which has a bath-house but the kids don't want to "waste time" getting in and out of their suits. How about this?

TEXAS QUESTIONER

DEAR QUESTIONER: My reply is sure to stir up the young animals, but this problem exists not only in Texas, but everywhere.

Teens who don't want to "waste time" changing into swim suits should wear slacks and shirts over their swimming clothes. The return trip calls for a change, however, unless the kids are kooky enough to go home in wet suits.

Our sex-oriented culture presents enough stimulation without allowing teenagers to drive around half naked. The fact that your son and his date decided not to go swimming after all speaks for itself. Certainly a bikini is no outfit for two hours of record playing.

Parents should get together and decide on the rules, then insist that the kids stick to them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need an opinion from someone who doesn't know me. And you're elected.

I'm a moderately attractive career girl, 32 years of age, reasonably content, and have always been accused of being "too fussy and too prudish" where men are concerned. The man I've been dating for the past seven months is 40, pleasant, and wonderful company. Co-incidentally, our vacations fall at exactly the same time and he jokingly suggested that we go on a trip together. The joking became serious and finally he said "Why not?"

Now I'm thinking seriously of saying yes. We would take my car because it's in better shape than his and everything would be strictly respectable. We'd stop at the same hotels, but have separate accommodations, naturally. We wouldn't lie about it, we'd tell everyone openly. I know we'd have a good time, but I'm concerned about my good name. Advice?—KISMET

DEAR KISMET: Which means more—the good time or the good name? The arrangement he suggests is unconventional and bound to cause plenty of chatter.

Incidentally, there's an old-fashioned custom that would make this trip just dandy. I wonder if he's heard of it. It's called marriage.

Street Paving In Midland Will Continue

Work Will Begin During July

MIDLAND — Mayor Lionel D. Baker announced that Council has voted unanimously to continue a street paving program within the town limits.

Street Commissioner Donald Cook reports that work will begin during the month of July. Wilson's Lane from Route 36 will be paved as well as the road to the Methodist parsonage.

The new railway crossing constructed last fall near the Midland ball park will be blacktopped on both sides. The railway crossing was constructed for the benefit of five families who live across the tracks in that area. They had great difficulty reaching their homes in automobiles and in the event of fire or other emergency equipment could not reach them quickly.

Railroad Street from the Dewey Williams property also will be paved. All streets that have been paved and now show signs of wear will be repaired.

The ball park will be graded and all holes filled.

Contract for the paving projects has been awarded to the Cumberland Contracting Company.

West Virginia "Drys" Support Present Status

EDITOR'S NOTE: While West Virginia does not vote on liquor-by-the-drink until November, 1962, both sides have begun preliminary planning for the coming battle. This is the second of two dispatches on the plans and expectations of the opposing sides, outlining the "dry" program.

By J. RICHARD TOREN
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — For purposes of the liquor vote scheduled 16 months from now, West Virginia's leading "drys" have to support a "wet" policy. Only they don't want the state to become any "wetter" than it already is.

"This campaign is no struggle of 'drys' for prohibition," says the Rev. L. E. Crowson, "even though many of us who oppose the expanded commercialization of this vice are abstainers by personal choice."

"We are put in the position of defending the wet policy of a wet state 'lest a worse thing should befall us,'" he said.

Crowson said West Virginia already has 3,750 beer outlets and 144 state liquor stores, and defeat of liquor-by-the-drink in the 1962 referendum will not change this.

While the pro-ratification forces "are presumably wet," he adds, those opposed to legalizing by-the-drink sales "include both drys and many moderate drinkers who can even now get beverage alcohol."

Crowson is pastor of Nightbird Memorial Methodist Church in Logan, and a leading dry spokesman. He serves as chairman of the Methodist Church's state Board of Christian Social Concerns, the committee on alcohol, education and rehabilitation of the state Council of Churches, and the Temperance League's legislative committee.

Need Superintendent

The anti-ratification forces have already had a lecturer in the field — Dr. Roy L. Smith who toured the state during May under sponsorship of the State Council of Churches and spoke in 10 cities.

But Crowson says organizational efforts on the anti-liquor side have been "seriously handicapped" by the fact that the West Virginia Temperance League is currently without a full-time superintendent.

Stanley B. Niles, who took over that post from the veteran L. J. Priestley about four years ago, resigned June 1 and a successor has not yet been found.

"If we had an executive head of the league he would probably bring together representatives from a dozen or more church groups, and various other civic and community organizations, and create a working team," Crowson said.

Eventually, most Protestant churches are expected to join actively in the fight against the liquor amendment, but Crowson rejects the idea that this gives his side a ready-made organizational advantage.

"There are more drinkers in West Virginia than there are church members," he said. "And not all church members are working at the church's task of transforming men and reforming society."

Crowson expects the anti-liquor forces to have trouble raising the large sums of money needed for an effective statewide campaign. He said the Methodist board and the Council of Churches are underfunded and understands that the Temperance League is in debt.

Wets Have Plenty

"There is at least one tavern in our state to one church," he said. "Are we likely to have the dollars to match our opponents?"

Crowson said that even with no out-of-state help, the wets could raise $500,000 through $20 a month contributions from the 1,800 potential liquor outlets.

"I would be very surprised if the liquor interests outside West Virginia did not put very large sums of money into the struggle. It is incredible to suppose that the number of sales outlets increase by 100, 500 or 1,000 percent will not result in the increase of sales."

"We may assume that liquor interests which put more than $100,000 into the 1960 election campaign — where liquor-by-the-drink was not an open issue — may very well put 10 or 20 times that much into a campaign where the potential profit growth would be increasingly great in future years," he said.

Eventually the anti-ratification forces plan to carry their message to the voters through what Crowson described as "study and discussion groups; addresses, talks, sermons; use of educational and informational material; use of mass-media 'public interest' time to the degree available; mailings to appropriate persons."

He also hopes that community, church and school groups will set up public discussions to "expose the fallacy" of the proposal to dedicate liquor tax money to education, to plan "registration caravans" for unregistered voters, and conduct precinct-level get-out-the-vote campaigns.

All will be needed, Crowson believes, to keep West Virginia from becoming wetter than it is now.

Businessmen To Meet

PIEDMONT — Tri-Towns Businessmen's Association will meet today at 7:30 p. m. in the conference room of the Upper Potomac Television Company, Erin Street, according to John Dennison, president.

Bloodmobile Will Visit Frostburg

FROSTBURG — Officials of the Frostburg Branch of the Allegany Chapter, American Red Cross, have announced that the visit of the bloodmobile here Tuesday will be dedicated to the memory of the late James E. Lamberson, Barton, who was employed at the local Acme Store when he died suddenly after rescuing a child from a burning trailer.

Mr. Lamberson gave blood each time the bloodmobile visited Frostburg and had given a total of 35 pints.

The bloodmobile will be located in the American Legion Home, West Main Street, from noon until 6 p. m. Members of Troop 42, Boy Scouts, sponsored by First Methodist Church, will again assist the loading the truck at the end of the day's work.

All residents have been urged to keep appointments Tuesday and, if not scheduled, to be a walk-in. It has been pointed out that vacation time brings on many emergencies at which time blood is needed in a hurry. By donating, a person may be putting blood in the bank for his own future use.

Legion Auxiliary Will Vote Tonight

FROSTBURG — Mrs. Helen Blocher, Mrs. Cornelia Lancaster, Mrs. Idella Stevens and Mrs. Ruth Berkenbaugh will represent Faraday Unit 24, American Legion Auxiliary, at the state convention in Baltimore this week. Registration gets underway Wednesday at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

Alternates are Mrs. Ruth Michaels, Mrs. Marie Cosgrove, Mrs. Thelma Layman and Mrs. Martha McNeil. Delegates-at-large include Mrs. Angela Jackson, Mt. District vice president and Mrs. Ruth Ferree.

Mrs. Jackson announced that Mountain District has the largest percentage of members in the Department of Maryland. Proceeds from a Poppy Day sale will be divided equally between the child welfare and rehabilitation funds of the auxiliary.

A 'Temporary' Federal Program

As part of the surplus food disposal program, the federal government has hired a number of salesmen to promote overseas sales of agricultural commodities. Theoretically, these salesmen and their expense accounts are on the payroll only temporarily, or as long as the Agriculture Department continues the disposal campaign it is now engaged in.

Commendable as is the attempt to locate and develop new outlets for farm surpluses, opposition to an attempt by the department to make its sales force permanent is coming from various sources on the ground that such government activity constitutes a discriminatory use of public funds to aid one segment of the business community.

One good reason why the government should turn over to private farm representatives responsibility for developing new markets as soon as possible has not been mentioned by opponents of a permanent government program. This is the method of payment accepted by the government sales force for the wheat, cotton, feed grains and other commodities it is able to dispose of.

Under the policies of farm surplus disposal, currency of the purchasing country is accepted in lieu of the scarcer and higher valued dollar. Acceptance of "soft currency" is necessary, government officials say, to get poorer nations to buy at all.

Part of this currency stays in the native country to finance further promotional activities, fairs and exhibitions. The remainder comes back at a discounted value to partially compensate the Agriculture Department for its investment.

The effect is to underwrite not only the costs of selling, but the difference between what the government pays for the surplus commodity and the lower price it gets for it. The cost is compounded by using some of the compensation to develop new markets to sell more goods at a loss.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky
Robbing Uncle Sam

Manufacturing and servicing rockets and missiles is not like making candy. As things stand today, the very life blood of the nation is dependent upon the speed and the efficiency of the production. Nevertheless, it is on the record that certain Americans have taken advantage of the urgency of this situation to place this country at a disadvantage vis-a-vis Soviet Russia.

The record shows that on February 27, 1961, the Deputy Secretary of Defense, Rosewell L. Gilpatrick, issued a memorandum which stated as follows:

"Reports have been made to this Office concerning excessive overtime work on contracts related to missile and space programs, including activities at test sites and operational sites under construction. It is particularly important at this time that our missile and space programs meet present schedules. It is also important that these programs be pursued with maximum efficiency and at reasonable cost as well as speed, and that employment opportunities be expanded wherever possible.

"Excessive overtime results in reduced efficiency, unreasonable costs, and unnecessary restriction of employment opportunities."

It is always possible to work slowly so that overtime becomes necessary. Such slow work is sabotage and this has been a fairly general practice at the missile bases. Involved in this situation are not only workers but also contractors and government officials who have been lax in their handling of improprieties. Also, it has been unfortunate that not enough publicity has been given to this subject.

General Thurman, in testifying before the Senate Permanent Committee of Investigations, has taken the position that the responsibility to carry out a contract is the contractor's. He testified:

"Now, sir, I don't consider it to be mediation, conciliation, or any of those things when I tell a contractor with the Air Force who is carrying out a job at one of our missile bases and there is a strike going on — I don't consider it a violation of anything to tell that contractor 'I consider it your responsibility to find an answer to this situation, and I am expecting you to do it.' I have done it."

Senator McClellan then asked him: — "Notwithstanding the fact, now, that it may be a jurisdictional strike over which he has no control?"

To this General Thurman made this astonishing reply:

"Notwithstanding that, sir, or anything else. It is the contractor's responsibility under his contract to manage. Finding solutions to these problems is his business. We are paying him for that. And the fact that it is difficult doesn't excuse him from performance."

Unfortunately, this is nonsense. No contractor has the power to force men to work, or to force them to work efficiently. No contractor can determine whether a labor union is to order a strike or not. The government took that power from the employer by all sorts of legislation, including the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Khrushchev assumption of co-existence is that our society is soft and self-indulgent and that because of these qualities, we shall be a push-over when the time comes. Certainly a jurisdictional strike in a missile plant can only be characterized as the product of a soft society. There have been a large number of jurisdictional strikes in the missile industry; whether a strike is jurisdictional or not, it results in lost man-hours and therefore in delay of the missile program. Also, the program becomes increasingly expensive.

The day may come when the government will be forced to avoid private contractors, to manufacture its own missiles and to use military labor to get the work done. This would be an expansion of the power of government over the individual which could ultimately change our form of government.

Through 1962, the American taxpayer will have contributed $11,800,000,000 to research, development, test, production and supporting facilities and for construction for Air Force missiles other than for ICBMs. That is a heavy load for the taxpayer to pay for instruments of defense which he does not know whether he will ever use. The taxpayer wants to be sure that he gets a dollar's worth for a dollar spent. He is not getting that if he has to pay for jurisdictional strikes.

It would seem that Congress has it as a duty to establish absolute controls over the production of munitions of war so that no country can outproduce us.

A Sharper Dilemma For The Demonologists

WASHINGTON

Demonological circles have been much agitated, in the last couple of days, by the publication in London of another alleged denunciation of Mao Tse-tung by his great Soviet comrade-in-arms, Nikita S. Khrushchev. Thus far, the consensus is that the London document is a plant and a forgery.

Nonetheless, this dubious document has rather sharply underlined what may be called the demonologists' dilemma. Even if it is as phony as a $3 bill, the fact remains that other evidence has lately been turning up, in increasing volume, which suggests very serious trouble between Russia and China. Yet even the most highpowered students of Communist demonology hardly know what to make of this evidence.

The most recent item was the brisk publication, by the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Trade, of the exact amount of China's very large debt to the Soviet Union. The sum mentioned was no less than 320 million dollars in rubles. China's inability to pay this sum on time was somewhat rudely pointed out, and the terms of the moratorium, permitting slow payment over a five-year period, were also published.

Publication of all these facts, many months after the event, seems to indicate an intention to document and emphasize both China's current economic difficulties, and the continuing dependence of the Peking leadership on aid from Moscow. The fact that this aid has not promoted amity was almost simultaneously indicated, by the affair of the anniversary celebrations in Peking and Ulan Bator.

The Peking celebrations were held in lonely splendor, with not a single Soviet delegate in attendance. But at the same moment, the leading theoretician of the Soviet Presidium, Mikhail Suslov, led an important Soviet delegation to the anniversary party being held in Outer Mongolia. And the Soviet press, while virtually ignoring the celebrations in Peking, reported those in Ulan Bator at great length and with great prominence.

The affair in Albania was directly more lurid in general outline, though still obscure in detail. Among the European Communist leaders, Enver Hoxha of Albania has been alone in supporting Mao Tse-tung in his ideological dispute with Khrushchev. Therefore Khrushchev evidently ordered the Soviet equivalent of the C. I. A. to squash Hoxha.

If the Soviet Union resembled the United States, the sequel might have been something like the Cuban affair. Certainly the attempt to squash the pro-Chinese Hoxha was a sorry failure. In the outcome, Khrushchev's agents in Albania were quickly identified. All were rounded up, executed. More important still, the Soviet submarine base in Albania was also abruptly closed, forcing Khrushchev to bring his submarines home to bases in the Baltic.

All these items of evidence point to the same conclusion, that no permanent results were achieved in Moscow last November, when the leaders of world Com-

NUCLEAR TESTS — It looks as if the A-bomb countries are about to resume nuclear weapons testing, with the United States taking the lead, because of the breakdown in Russian-American efforts to negotiate an agreement to ban them.

The U. S. position is understandable—that we have voluntarily refrained from testing without any assurance that Russia is not secretly testing—but nevertheless will result in increased anti-American feeling among neutral and newly established countries.

In some backward areas of the world, political leaders have succeeded in arousing public opinion to a remarkable degree on the question of the imminent poisoning of the atmosphere with radioactive nuclear particles. It is true that any radioactivity is harmful, but the U. S., Russia, England and France would have to set off an awful lot of bombs to make the world unlivable. Russian propagandists have played a large role in fostering this notion in order to reduce American popularity in some foreign areas. Yet, as it is plain to informed people, the Russians are the ones who have tailored events to bring about the resumption of atomic testing.

There are individuals in high government office who firmly believe that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's objective was to push the U. S. into the position it now finds itself—actively considering a test resumption because of national security.

It is no coincidence that the impasse was brought out into the open by President Kennedy upon his return from his Vienna talks with Khrushchev. The only question that now remains is how the government will seek to educate the rest of the world to the necessity for resuming tests. The U. S. cannot reverse, but it can minimize world reaction if proper educational and publicity devices are used.

Army Commander Uses Negro MPs To Arrest Negro Soldier Sit-Ins

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Maj. Gen. Edward G. Farrand, commander at Fort Hood, Tex., has hit upon the neat device of using Negro military police to break up Negro sit-ins against segregated white restaurants in nearby Killeen, Tex. Here is the story of what happened.

On July 9 last year, Private Robert B. Curtis of the 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood, with two other Negro soldiers, staged a sit-in protest at Craig's lunch counter in Killeen. They were arrested by the provost marshal, Col. M. C. Miller, accompanied by several military police, and ordered to report to General Farrand, who, they state, threatened them with court martial if they were involved in a similar incident.

This pretty well intimidated negro troops stationed at Fort Hood until April 22 of this year, when Curtis and one other Negro soldier again sat-in at Craig's restaurant. This time, the provost marshal made a special trip to the barracks and recruited twelve Negroes to serve as military police. Normally, Negro troops do not serve as MP's outside of camp for fear of arousing the resentment of white Texans. But in this case twelve Negro MP's were rushed to Craig's restaurant and arrested the Negro sit-ins.

When the United Press International telephoned Fort Hood from

Austin to inquire about the incident, the provost marshal's office denied that anything had happened.

When this column queried the Army in Washington as to whether such suppression of the news was a part of U. S. Army policy, the Army, after taking five days to exchange communications with Fort Hood, made no comment. It did not deny the incident took place.

When asked whether the use of Negro troops to apprehend Negro sit-in strikers was U. S. Army policy the Army replied that an order had been issued, June 19, instructing General Farrand and other commanders that MP's could not be used "on behalf of local authorities to support enforcement of segregation," though they could be used to "quell affrays" where military personnel are involved.

On June 11 of this year, six Negro soldiers again picketed Craig's restaurant, this time accompanied by one civilian, Mrs. Charles Ludwig of Killeen.

This time Gen. Farrand had heard from Washington and did not arrest the sit-ins. However, Mrs. Ludwig's husband, Charles Ludwig, who works for the Red Cross on the post, was given 24 hours' notice that he was no longer welcome at Fort Hood.

Mrs. Ludwig, who was a volunteer Gray Lady at the U. S. Army hospital was informed that her services were no longer wanted, though she had donated them free.

The Army in Washington, when queried as to whether the disciplining of the two civilians represented U. S. Army policy, referred the matter to the Red Cross.

The Diplomatic Cables

President Kennedy's ailing back now feels strong enough so he is definitely planning a goodwill visit to Latin America in August—visiting Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, and Venezuela. His main mission will be the big Inter-American Economic Conference in Montevideo August 5 . . . Premier Khrushchev is trying to lure Prime Minister Macmillan into undertaking a dramatic peace mission to Moscow to head off war over Berlin. Privately, the Russians have passed the word that a Macmillan mission similar to the one he undertook in 1959 would be welcome. British diplomats figure it's a maneuver by Khrushchev to play up to Macmillan's aspirations to be the great peace leader of the 20th Century, and the British Embassy has strongly recommended against any trip to Moscow . . . General DeGaulle has promised to withdraw at least two of France's top divisions from Algeria in time to mobilize for the Berlin crisis.

This is why DeGaulle is urgently pressing the Algerian rebels for a compromise peace . . . The Austrian government has offered Vienna as a site for an East-West summit conference on Berlin in November. Premier Khrushchev told the Austrians before he left that he would like to come back for such a meeting. After checking accommodations, the Austrians have decided they can handle the diplomats and the mob of reporters that would accompany them. However, speculation regarding a summit conference is still very premature.

Medical Deception

Here is some of the evidence on the fabulously wealthy drug industry that led Senator Kefauver to introduce legislation regulating injurious patented medicine.

Sworn testimony showed that some of the major drug companies have distorted, concealed, or even lied about the side effects of their drugs.

Chloromycetin, the second largest selling antibiotic, used especially on children was found to destroy some of the marrow in children's bones long after the drug had been used.

The Food and Drug Administration and the National Research Council informed Parke, Davis, manufacturer of chloromycetin, August 1952, the drug could go back on the market "under revised labeling that would caution physicians explicitly against its indiscriminate use;" that it should be used only in certain sometimes fatal diseases in which its use is necessary, such as Rocky Mountain spotted fever and other rickettsial diseases.

Parke, Davis, however, according to sworn testimony, responded by sending its salesmen a series of promotional letters which the Kefauver Committee reported as "ranging from the deceptively misleading to the downright false." These letters claimed that the drug had been "officially cleared" with "no reservations on the number or the range of diseases which chloromycetin may be administered."

This was directly contrary to advice from the Food and Drug Administration. In a subsequent letter to salesmen, Parke, Davis stated that the failure of the government to ban use of the drug completely was "undoubtedly the highest compliment ever tendered to the Parke, Davis medical staff.

This is why Kefauver now proposes legislation to ban any medicine unless the Food and Drug Administration has licensed it.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The writers have laid their narcissistic flowers on the grave of Ernest Hemingway. They adored him. They envied him. Those who affected contempt, imitated him. He taught them how to peel their words before devouring them. He also taught them hard-boiled poetry and how to under-paint and under-say.

Hemingway was not a natural writer. He strained for perfection like a schoolboy writing a class essay. He wrote standing up at a mantelpiece with pencil and sheaves of paper. He said that if he got 275 "satisfactory" words a day, it was an achievement. That is about one-third the length of this column.

"We are all apprentices in a craft where no one ever becomes a master," he said. He came close. He painted solid portraits and, as he wrote, he could see the scene and hear the characters speak. He had an analytical eye and a keen ear. He also had a good head and he could smell the phony and the craven on being introduced.

There was an ocean of difference between the men Hemingway wrote about, and the man himself. His heroes were virile men who knew how to kill, how to make love, and how to die. Somehow the three became intermingled in the timeless pity, which is the secret sorrow of the author. Ernest Hemingway could never be as big as his heroes.

His fascination with the bullring was not predicated on the death of the bull, but rather on the prescribed ballet of the dying matador. Always he was a spectator, when he wanted to be a participant. He hunted big game in Africa and small birds near Ketchikan, Idaho. He drank well and numbed his impatience under cognac.

Hemingway did not believe in God and the soul builds a good callous when one is young. Once he wrote to Mark Hellinger: "When you die, my friend, you are dead and there is nothing that comes after." He lived well in his lack of faith, but, as Hemingway grew older, the poverty of the spirit began to match the weakness of the body and the despair of the mind. After his trip to the Mayo Clinic, the author began to hurt. Like his heroes, he had learned how to kill, how to make love and, at 61, a man must learn something about dying.

All of his killing was done hunting game. He figured in three wars, but there is no record that Ernest Hemingway ever killed a man. In World War I, he drove an ambulance on the Italian Front. In the Spanish Civil War, he was a correspondent and picked the losing side. In World War II, when I was War Editor at Collier's, he was our French correspondent after D-Day.

That's when soldiers began to call him Papa. He talked tough and he slept with hand grenades and bandoliers under his bed, but he began to wear steel rimmed spectacles and he grew a white beard. The thing he tried to kill, and couldn't, was pity. When a wounded soldier cried with pain, Ernest Hemingway blinked behind the glasses, and his soul wept.

He loved men and he was at his best with them. There were four wives and each filled a current need, but the last one, Mary, was his best love. They lived for a long time at a place called Finca Vigia, outside Havana. There he came closest to the pure serene happiness he sought—writing The Old Man and the Sea, fishing, living with his true love, and meeting his friends at a saloon in Havana.

After the advent of Fidel Castro, he left. He lived outside Sun Valley, Idaho, and his works earned him a fortune and honors which ran all the way up to the Nobel Prize. The Franco government of Spain forgave him and he went back to the country of his early literary triumphs and wrote a book polka-dotted with the opinions and spite of an aging man.

His cult was strength of body and mind. When the body began to fail him, Hemingway could not forgive it. He was imprisoned inside a carcass which creaked with years. There was no way out. He watched his friends die off in sullen silence. Some, like Gary Cooper, knew how to leave with grace and a courtly bow. A man had to know how to die. As each one left, Hemingway knew for whom the bell tolled. It tolled for him.

When Mark Hellinger went, Hemingway wrote to me: "Mark seemed to me like a man who had decided to do everything he had been ordered not to do. We tried to control him and failed. In the intervals between these moments of desperation he was kind, delicate, affectionate and intelligent. But he was like a man who was doomed and hurrying to his doom."

"I was never any good at wakes, so please pardon any consciousness."

Fighting Mental Illness With Tranquilizers

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many tranquilizing drugs are used in mental institutions to calm agitated, aggressive, and violent psychotic patients. These products are indispensable tools in managing such disturbed behavior. The early reports were so encouraging, some physicians predicted our large mental institutions soon would be empty or used for convalescent patients. Tranquilizers are good but not this good.

In the last six years many patients who were discharged, had to return; mental institutions are as full as ever. This demonstrates that drugs alone do not cure and that the care of these people must be continued after they go home, to prevent recurrences. Disturbing factors that cause relapses should be corrected to minimize the frustrations, tensions, and fears of these men and women.

Phenothiazine is the granddaddy of this group of marvelous tranquilizers. The drug was synthesized by a German chemist in 1883. On one occasion it was exhumed and tried as an insecticide; on another, to eliminate worms. Otherwise it sat on the shelf until six years ago, when its tranquilizing properties were discovered.

Other drugs have been made from the basic formula by juggling the molecules chemically. At present there are 10 major derivatives of phenothiazine with names such as Thorazine, Trilafon, Compazine, Sparine, Phenergan, and Stelazine.

These products vary in their action and some work better than others on certain people. Compazine, for example, calms by virtue of a unique sedative effect whereas Stelazine goes directly to the source by improving the underlying psychotic processes. All ally the nausea of pregnancy and quiet the acute alcoholic and the person who is dazed as a result of a head injury.

Like other powerful drugs, toxic side effects mar their perfect record. The users must be watched carefully to detect adverse reactions such as fever, rashes, tremor, drowsiness, depression, engorgement of the breast, destruction of the blood, and inner restlessness.

DILATING PUPILS

E. C. M. writes: Why are the eyes dilated before being fitted with glasses?

REPLY

Because the eyes are able to overcome or compensate for visual deficiencies by adjusting the size of the pupils. When the pupils are dilated with eye drops, a more accurate test can be made.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

The dignified London Tatler describes an anguished moment at a great dinner given by socialite Mrs. Ronnie Greville for the Foreign Secretary, Sir Austen Chamberlain and his wife.

Mrs. Greville's butler, unfortunately, had been partaking very liberally of the cocktails and wines intended for the guests. Reluctant to make a scene, Mrs. G. handed him a note which said, "Leave the room at once. You are drunk."

The butler nodded gravely, and promptly handed the note, on a salver, to Lady Chamberlain.

Confided a father to his son, "Disregard your mother's story of how I won her hand in marriage, my boy. The fact is she proposed to me four times . . . and I have the scars to prove it."

Despondent gent sought a $50 loan from a finance company. Explained he, "I'm behind exactly fifty bucks in my wife's alimony—and I'm terrified she'll repossess me!"

Detroit Tigers Regain Lead, Pirates, Orioles Win

Lary, Bunning Tame Angels, 1-0 And 6-3

Former Bags 13th Win; Bengals Lead Yankees By Point

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers jumped back into first place in the American League Sunday by a margin of one percentage point, beating the Los Angeles Angels twice by scores of 1-0 and 6-3 behind the pitching of Frank Lary and Jim Bunning.

Lary raised his record to 13-4 with a strong three-hitter in the opener and Bunning won his ninth game in the nightcap, although he required ninth-inning help from Hank Aguirre.

The double victory, coupled with New York's split with Boston, left the Tigers one point ahead of the Yankees.

Lary and Bunning each posted 10 strikes against the light-hitting Angels.

The only run in the opener came in the second inning when Los Angeles starter Eli Grba walked Norm Cash and left Steve Boros on the head. Rookie catcher Mike Roark drove in Cash with a single to center field.

Some shaky Los Angeles fielding helped the Tigers to a 3-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap.

The Angels drew close with two runs in the fifth but Bunning worked out of that jam by striking out Steve Bilko. The Angels got their final run in the eighth inning off Bilko's 12th home run, but by that time the Tigers were comfortably ahead, thanks to a three-run splash in the sixth inning.

Starter Ryne Duren, who lasted only four innings, was the loser.

Reds Top Dodgers, 14-3, Up Lead To Five Games

Jay Notches 12th, Robinson Hits Two Homers, Has 7 RBIs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Joey Jay hurled his 12th win of the season and Frank Robinson hit two homers Sunday as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 14-3, to increase their league lead to five games.

The victory was the third for the Reds in the four-game series and was featured by the ejection of Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale for throwing at and hitting Robinson in the sixth inning.

With his victory, Jay became the first pitcher in the National League to achieve 12 wins. He has only four losses against him.

In addition to driving in two runs with each of his homers, Robinson sent home three more in the top of the ninth on a bases-loaded double to give him seven runs batted in.

The Cincinnati outfielder had four hits in four official times at bat.

Although Drysdale was ejected for hitting Robinson, the Cincinnati outfielder got all his hits off other pitchers. He homered in the first inning off starter Roger Craig, got his second homer in the eighth inning off the fifth Dodger pitcher, Dick Farrell, and drove in the three runs in the ninth off Farrell.

Craig, the first of five Dodger pitchers, was charged with the loss.

Cubs Cop Pair From Phillies

Extend Win String To Five, 9-8, 8-5

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs generated enough batting power to offset a total of seven errors Sunday and took a doubleheader from the last-place Philadelphia Phils 9-8 and 8-5. The second game was called after eight innings because of darkness.

The two triumphs stretched the Cubs' winning streak to five games and concluded one of their most successful home stands in years—11 of 15 decisions.

With the help of six extra-base hits in the first four innings of the first game, including homers by Ed Bouchee and Al Heist, the Cubs piled up a 9-3 lead and held on for their one-run decision, although they committed four errors, which resulted in six unearned Philadelphia runs.

The Phils had a 4-1 lead in the third inning of the second game as Don Demeter drove in three of the runs on his sixth homer and a two-run single. But the Cubs stormed back with three runs in the bottom of the third and went ahead to stay with three more in the sixth.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
▲AKQ103 ♥93 ♦AJ7642
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

Q. 2—As South you hold:
▲AK865 ♥K10 ♦J63 ♠AQ4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
5 ♦ Pass
A.—Six no trump. For a preempt at this level partner can be assumed to possess a solid suit of at least eight and quite possibly nine cards in length. You consequently have the required 12 tricks for a slam, but it might be vital to protect your king of hearts from being led through in case partner has a small doubleton in that suit.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
▲KJ1074 ♥A864 ♦K753
The bidding has proceeded:
East South
1 ♠ Pass
A.—Despite partner's announcement of a mediocre holding we would be inclined to insist upon a game contract. If partner has a preference for one of the major suits there should be a good chance, because of the highly favorable distribution. The suggested bid, therefore, is three hearts. A bid of only two hearts will very likely be passed by partner.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
▲K10753 ♥AJ1072 ♦A ♠A5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
A.—Despite partner's announcement of a mediocre holding we would be inclined to insist upon a game contract. If partner has a preference for one of the major suits there should be a good chance, because of the highly favorable distribution. The suggested bid, therefore, is three hearts. A bid of only two hearts will very likely be passed by partner.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
▲KQ865 ♥J9 ♦J43 ♠AQ8
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♦
A.—Despite your lack of a heart stopper, a bid of three no trump is recommended. There is nothing to be gained by rebidding spades.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
▲Q84 ♥J6 ♦KJ943 ♠Q85
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
A.—Two spades. Partner has continued the bidding at a time when he could conveniently pass. His hand, therefore, must have certain merit. You have your values where they fit best and you should give partner one more chance. He will realize that you have only three spades because at your first opportunity you preferred clubs to spades.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
▲A73 ♥KJ1063 ♦J10 ♠KQ8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass ?
A.—A strengthening bid is in order. While there is no doubt that you have a game, the hand may have greater potentialities. For partner's exact strength has not yet been determined. A jump in hearts is not suitable because the suit itself has not the proper texture. Spades should not be supported vigorously with three trumps. Lack of a diamond stopper bars a jump in no trump. So, by the process of elimination, we choose three clubs, intending to take further action on the next round.

Q. 8—Both sides vulnerable and as South you hold:
▲92 ♥J542 ♦AK972 ♠K10
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass ?
A.—Four hearts. Partner's vulnerable overall should be approximately six tricks and your hand rates to produce at least four. A single raise therefore would not be adequate.

What action do you take?

Bedford County Youth Dies In Truck Accident

Three Companions Injured In Crash

Four Bedford County youths were injured, one of them fatally, early yesterday morning when the truck in which they were riding hit a concrete bridge near Loysburg, Pa.

Fatally injured in the crash was Gary Philip Zimmerman, 16, of RD 1, Hopewell.

A passenger in the vehicle, he was pronounced dead on arrival at Nason Hospital, Roaring Springs, at 2:10 a. m. Death resulted from a fractured skull.

The driver and two other youths were admitted to the same hospital. They are:

Joyce Spielman, 15, RD 1, Hopewell. She was reported resting comfortably after treatment of multiple contusions and lacerations.

Strikes Bridge

Alice Ritchey, 15, Hopewell, was reported in fair condition. She suffered multiple lacerations and contusions and possible fractures of the spine and shoulder.

Richard Allen Helsel, 18, Water-side, listed by State Police as operator of the truck, was reported in fair condition. He suffered a lacerated scalp and possible fracture of the right shoulder in the crash.

State Police at Bedford said the accident occurred yesterday at 1:15 a. m. on Route 868 just east of Loysburg and 15 miles north of Bedford.

They said the truck was being driven west when the operator apparently lost control of the vehicle.

Three of the four youths were thrown out as the truck swerved to the right berm of the highway, returned and struck a concrete bridge on the opposite side of the highway and then bounced off and crossed the road to hit the concrete wall on the opposite side before coming to rest in the middle of the highway.

Rites Are Planned

The dead youth was a son of Virgil R. and Laura (Baker) Zimmerman, of RD 1, Hopewell, and was born in Mason Hospital, Roaring Springs.

He would have been a senior in North Bedford County Jointure school this fall. He had been active in school organizations and was a member and church organist of the Yellow Springs Church of the Brethren.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Doris Batzell, RD 1, Hopewell, and Miss Nadine Zimmerman, DeKalb, Ill., and two brothers, Glen B., Camp Hill, and Daryl S. Zimmerman, Loysburg.

The body will be at the home today at 7 p. m. A funeral service will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. (EDT) in Yellow Creek Church of the Brethren, Rev. Charles Helzel and Rev. Joseph H. Clapper will officiate and burial will be in Steele Cemetery.

Joint Material Causes Cracks In New Surface

The Mayor and Council was told last week that cracks which have appeared in the new wearing course on Central Avenue resulted from the movement of expansion joints.

During a meeting in City Hall Thursday night, he explained the same situation occurred on the approach to the Blue Bridge, where plans meeting federal aid specifications called for a concrete base and a bituminous wearing course.

Mr. Nuzum said expansion joints must be used so slabs of concrete can expand or contract as the temperature rises or falls.

He told city officials the expansion joints used to concrete over trenches left after gas company line work meets State Roads Commission specifications.

There is no place for the expansion joint material to go but up, he said, and it pushed the flexible blacktopped wearing course with it.

The cracks appeared over a stretch of concrete laid over a trench dug to allow the gas company to renew its lines.

Mr. Nuzum said city workers will examine the are periodically and fill any cracks which open.

McKeldin Says C&O Should Submit Study

BALTIMORE (AP) — An operational study made by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway on the basis of a proposed merger with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad should be submitted at a hearing in progress in Washington, according to former Maryland Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin.

McKeldin said the C&O had not submitted the study for fear it would be "detrimental to its application for the B&O." The C&O is seeking approval from Interstate Commerce Commission to control the financially weak B&O.

"The C&O certainly will not gain the approval of public opinion in Maryland by this change in policy by making the distinction that the present hearing simply concerns control and not merger, which will come later," McKeldin said.

Senator Snyder Takes Blast At Own Party

Criticizes Some Democratic Leaders

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—Criticism of the Democratic administration of Gov. Tawes came not from Republicans, but from its own ranks during the weekend.

Sen. George E. Snyder, D-Washington, accused party leaders of "dynasty building and wheeling and dealing." He warned the Democrats could be facing "a dangerous situation" in next year's general election.

"There is no doubt in my mind that certain state leaders are not overwhelmingly popular at this time," said Snyder.

"Under the Tawes administration there have been some great steps forward for Maryland, but at the same time there has been a series of errors that, in my opinion, make the situation dangerous."

The senator added: "As a legislator I have witnessed by far too much dynasty building and wheeling and dealing with an often affected self-interest motive."

Snyder also criticized the Democratic State Central Committee of Maryland.

"I feel confident," he said, "that if the State Central Committee expects to carry out what it claims it is seeking—namely a stronger party and unity—it is best not to act as if it is trying to completely control a primary and assume present office holder will be renominated."

County Trails 10 In State In U.S. Employees

75,526 Marylanders Counted In Report

Although Maryland has a total federal civilian employment of 75,526, nearly half of the state's counties have more federal civilian employees than does Allegany County.

This fact is gleaned from a 120-page report just released by the Joint Congressional Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures headed by Senator Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat.

Ten of the 23 Maryland counties and Baltimore City are ahead of Allegany County, the report shows. These figures, based on employment as of December 31, 1960, show Allegany County with only 230 federal civilian employees.

Montgomery Has Most

Maryland's leader, the report shows, is Montgomery County with 19,115 federal civilian employees. Others ahead of Allegany County are Prince George's County, 11,096; Baltimore City, 10,519; Baltimore County, 8,612; Harford County, 8,474; Anne Arundel County, 7,259; Charles County, 2,559; Frederick County, 2,123; St. Mary's County, 2,008; Cecil County, 1,781; and Washington County, 599.

Most of Allegany County's federal civilian employees are in the post office department. The report lists 181 post office employees. One figure in the Allegany County is disputed by local Civil Defense officials who say that there are no paid Civil Defense employees in this county.

Senator Byrd's committee report lists five Allegany County federal civilian employees in the office of Civil and Defense Mobilization. There are only 94 listed for the entire state, and the 89 others attributed to Montgomery County. Some believe the five should be listed with Anne Arundel County, which is next to Allegany alphabetically.

Listed By Departments

Other federal civilian employees by department for Allegany County:

Agriculture, six; Commerce, three; Health, Education and Welfare, 12; Interior, four; Justice, one; Treasury, nine; Army, four; Selective Service System, three, and Veterans' Administration, two.

Garrett County is credited with 77 federal civilian employees, which places it ahead of only four Maryland counties. Others with fewer federal civilian employees are Somerset, 71; Kent, 65; Queen Anne's, 50, and Calvert, 45.

As a state, Maryland ranks ninth in the nation in the number of federal civilian employees. California is the leader with 239,464. Others in the top 10 are New York, 179,784; District of Columbia, 168,991; Pennsylvania, 129,084; Texas, 112,647; Virginia, 103,560; Illinois, 98,915; Ohio, 88,785; Maryland, 75,526, and Massachusetts, 62,246.

Berkeley County Second

West Virginia, with only 10,540 federal civilian employees, tops only nine states. Nearby Berkeley County, where Martinsburg is the county seat, is second in the state in federal civilian employees with 1,229. Only Cabell County, with 1,572, tops Berkeley County.

All but 60 of the Berkeley County federal civilian employees are hired by the Veterans' Administration, which operates Newton D. Baker Hospital near Martinsburg.

Federal civilian employees in other nearby West Virginia counties include the following:

Grant County, 40; Hampshire County, 55; Hardy County, 36; Mineral County, 58; Morgan County, 34; Pendleton County, 47; Preston County, 87, and Tucker County, 59.

Although Pennsylvania ranks fourth nationally in federal civilian employment, the two counties nearest Cumberland are not among the leaders. Out of the 129,804 federal civilian employees in Pennsylvania, only 126 are employed in Bedford County and 211 in Somerset County.

FUNERAL TODAY—Services for John Gerald Wilhelm, 18, of RD 1, Lonaconing, will be conducted today at 2 p. m. in Mt. Zion Methodist Church by Rev. Emory McGraw, with burial in Blocker Cemetery. The youth was killed Friday when a tree fell on him while he was cutting timber on his father's farm.

Award Named In Honor Of Fire Chief

Lamberson Trophy To Be Presented

The executive board of the Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Firemen's Association yesterday made arrangements for the "James E. Lamberson Award" which will be presented next year to the fire company with the best fire prevention record.

The award, named in honor of James E. Lamberson, chief of the Barton Company, who was fatally stricken while rescuing a small child from a trailer fire in Frostburg on May 31, will be presented at the county convention next June in Frostburg.

The time covered for the trophy will be from last May 1 until April 30, 1962.

Golden Anniversary

In other action at yesterday's meeting, the association began making plans for its golden anniversary which also will be observed at the convention next year.

A report on the recent state convention also was made yesterday. David E. Kirk, Bowling Green, was named second vice president, and William A. Wilson, Midland, was re-elected treasurer. Frostburg, which had been in the running for the site of the 1962 state convention, withdrew in favor of Hagerstown.

Several committee appointments were made yesterday including George F. Comp Jr., Deer Park, who was named to the executive board. Others included Jesse Jackson, Frostburg, fire safety; Felix Foote, Lonaconing, public relations, and Francis Fatkin, five-year term on the fire prevention committee.

The Bedford Road Company, which was host to the meeting, announced it has secured a peneator which would be available for use by any community.

Auction Planned

The association also received a letter of sympathy in the death of Mr. Lamberson from the Montgomery County Firemen's Association.

Representatives of the Shaft Company said an auction sale will be held Saturday with proceeds going to the building fund. The company has nearly completed a new $17,000 fire hall.

Yesterday's meeting was attended by 21 of the 31 member companies. Thirteen past presidents also were present.

At the conclusion of the meeting, a dinner was served by the Bedford Road company auxiliary.

Ewing Attacks Move To Change CD Organization

BALTIMORE (AP) — Placing civil defense functions under the jurisdiction of the Defense Department and other federal agencies would result in "a state of absolute confusion," Maryland's Civil Defense director said Saturday.

Shirley Ewing, Maryland's CD director, made the remark after it was reported President Kennedy met with Defense Department leaders a few days ago to discuss changing the existing Civil Defense setup.

Ewing said it is "ridiculous to think that the unlearned federal agencies can carry out the needed parts of the CD program. It would weaken the effort across the nation," he concluded.

Order Prepared For Agreements On Water Taps

Protects Land For Future Annexation

An order authorizing the Mayor and City Clerk to execute contracts for water taps with owners of property located in areas which may some day become part of the city has been prepared for introduction at today's meeting of the Mayor and City Council.

Affected by the order and the attached agreement would be all owners of property located between the present city limits and bounded generally on the east by Evitts Creek, on the south by the Potomac River, on the north by the present city limits and on the west by a point about 2,000 feet west of the present city line.

Attached to the order is a copy of the agreement which points out that the Water Department has established a policy whereby it will not grant any water taps to serve properties in the area (reserved for annexation), and that the policy is effective until December 31, 1965, when customers residing in the areas and using city water must either submit annexation petitions or discontinue the use of city water.

Protects Planner

The agreement specifies that if the customer's property is not incorporated within the city limits within the period, the customer will, at his own expense, make arrangements to obtain water from a source other than the City Water Department.

It was made clear at a meeting of the Mayor and Council last Thursday that the action was being taken to protect the interests of the City of Cumberland.

Making the restrictions, it was explained, would offer protection for the city's planner, should he decide it were in the best interests of the city to expand the city's boundaries.

The Mayor and Council is expected within a few weeks to select a firm to prepare a comprehensive plan for the City of Cumberland.

Allows Annexation

The heart of the agreement was expressed at Thursday's meeting as "you are letting them have water but under a contract which will allow annexation."

Any other plan, it was pointed out, would tie the hands of the planner.

The area reserved for future annexation would boost the area of city by nearly 25 per cent.

At present, the city comprises 4,723.25 acres and the reserved area would add 1,138 acres.

Teachers Unit To Integrate

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) The Prince Georges County Teachers Association, an all white organization, will begin recruiting Negro teachers starting in September.

Mrs. Mary Agnes Law, president of the association, said Saturday the majority of the membership had voted to drop the color bar.

The group's constitution, she said, would be revised to eliminate the word white as a qualification for membership.

Once formal action is taken, the Prince Georges County Education Association, a Negro group, will cease to exist, because the Maryland State Teachers Association recognizes only one organization in a county if that group is integrated.

The teachers association has some 2,500 members and the Negro group has a membership of 325.

Ten Maryland counties and Baltimore City now have integrated teachers associations. The remaining 13 counties have separate Negro and white groups which are affiliated individually with the State Teachers Association.

The International Cooperation Administration has expressed thanks to Mayor J. Edwin Keech for hospitality extended by city officials recently to Dr. Ali Hedayati of Iran.
